CyberSmart! welcomes Barry Mansfield as Director of Education

April 1, 2005

Barry Mansfield, Director of Education

Barry's hands-on expertise in the area of educational technology has made him an invaluable resource to teachers for over a decade, as he has personally mentored hundreds of teachers in dozens of schools nationwide on integrating technology into the classroom to improve teaching and learning. Most recently, Barry directed programs for the Mid-Atlantic Regional Technology in Education Consortium (MARTEC) at Temple University, one of 10 national centers funded by the U.S. Department of Education. While at MARTEC, Barry evaluated, developed, and implemented curriculum, instructional web sites, videos, and online tools for K-12 teachers and students. During his time with MARTEC, Barry also co-created the innovative and acclaimed "Reflection Connection," an online collaboration tool for teachers.

Prior to MARTEC, Barry was Academic Director at the Caledonian School, the premier language institution in Prague, Czech Republic. In this role, Barry supervised over 200 teachers, planned and implemented curriculum, and created professional development for both academic and business organizations. Barry has also taught English as a second language at Temple University, Drexel University, and in South Korea. Barry holds a Master's Degree in Education from Temple University and is completing his doctorate in Educational Technology at the University of Delaware.
